Director of the CIA

Dear Sir,

Not having received any response to my previous letter, I take the liberty of writing to you again so that you may consider my request to belong to this internationally prestigious organization. I don't want to remain a simple detective and remain as I am, without being able to get ahead. For this reason, I am requesting the prospectus and the forms in Spanish and the lessons, not in English, because over here nobody knows how to translate English into Spanish. I want to continue studying and not remain a simple detective. For this reason, with all due respect, I appear before you, to ask you to grant my request because it is just. So I beg you to accept my application, and I await your prompt answer.

Sincerely yours,
